WILD THINGS PUBLISHING

Our mission is to create inspiring books that get people out, experiencing and enjoying nature, and our wonderful, often local, world.... back to where the Wild Things are.

Daniel Start wrote his first book in 1997, The Open Cage, about a biodiversity project in New Guinea with WWF that took a new direction when a new rebel leader arrived. After 10 years in international and community development he left office life to research the Wild Swimming places of Britain. He is passionate about photography, maps and exploring the lesser known places closer to home.

Tania Pascoe wrote her first book, the Wild Guide to the South West, in 2013, after a career in art and environmental consultancy. A Somerset girl born and bred, she is a passionate gardener and is now writing Britain's first guide to Wild Gardens and meadows.
